It was just a little over ten years ago that commercial travel began; in that year less than six thousand passengers were carried by air craft. After the Lindbergh and other spectacular air journeys, the public seemed to have an increased confidence in air travel and the number using such facilities increased rapidly.

Now, it is possible for a traveler to get on a good commercial plane, which travels two hundred miles on hour, is sound-proof and furnishes every convenience to its twenty-four passengers. Some planes even provide sleeping quarters. Safety is assured, for in 1935 there TIRE prevention week occurs next month but was only one death for each 24,000,000 passenger miles.

CITY'S COMPARATIVE STATEMENT.

INANCIAL statements as a rule mean little or nothing to the average reader. While figures never lie, too often they are of immaterial interest for statistics are prosaic at best. But they generally tell a story-information that proves facts—of definite interest to whom they may concern.

In this issue of the city's official journal appears a financial statement that is of vital interest to all who live in Bay St. Louis, the people who go to make up the municipality, who pay taxes and contribute to the general business set-up of the locality.

Citizens, voters and others who go to make the combined population have an economic interest in the city's welfare that cannot be denied. And it is to this class of people The Echo directs attention to the financial statement of the city of Bay St. Louis, covering that period from October 1, 1932 to June 30, 1936.

Our people are the stockholders of the city. Our mayor and commissioners are the board of directors, and how well the present administration has fared is best told by a perusal of this statement followed by the interpretative footnotes that follow. The footnotes are addressed 'To the Citizens of Bay St. Louis.'

The Echo asks this statement be read, analyzed and a favorable conclusion will follow. We are very proud of the board of Mayor and is evident and also the fact that the courses of Commissioners that have administered so well study, laid out in our schools, have broadened to the city's affairs; they do not only deserve to include much more than the three R's of commendation for their labors done in such earlier days. ONE-TERMER SUGGESTS judgeship. One-Termer withdraws the name of his favorite, Bidwell Adam, former Lieutenant-Governor, and says he is willing to join his colleague in endorsing either of the following:

(Jackson News) NE-TERM Bilbo seeks peace With Pat Harrison concerning that vacant Federal

Fleet C. Hathorn, Poplarville. J. M. Burkett, Jackson. Forest B. Jackson, Jackson. Cecil Travis, Jackson. J. Morgan Stevens, Jackson.

Chancellor V. J. Stricker, Jackson. Chancellor M. D. Montgomery, Greenwood.

Chancellor R. W. Carter, Magnolia. Hugh V. Wall, Brookhaven. Nate Williamson, Meridian.

Quite a confession on the part of One-Termer, it must be candidly admitted.

Some of the lawyers and jurists in the above list did not support the Bilbo-Conner combination in the recent Senatorial campaign. Several were active against them.

Others on the list have long been dyed-in-the-wool Bilbo followers. No use naming them. Senator Harrison's may, or may not, fall on some person whose name appears on Bilbo's list. That remains to be

However, the situation remains unchanged.

Senator Harrison will make his selection without any regard whatsoever to what Bilbo thinks on the subject. He is utterly indifferent to all that is going on in the Bilbo mind.

MISSISSIPPI FACTORY PLAN (N. O. Times-Picayune)

MEEMINGLY assured success for Governor White's legislative program in Mississippi to "balance agriculture with industry" will draw interest and debate from the whole country. So far as we know, it is the first time that any state has authorized its counties to build and, if necessary, to operate factories of any and all kinds.

Some of the opponents of the legislation raised an objection of "communism," while others felt that it was "fascist." But the dominating and prevailing sentiment in the Legislature has been that the industrial status of the state is desperately low, that its agricultural future is not clear in all respects, and that state measures have become necessary to assure the well being of the people. The expressed purpose of Governor White and the legislative majorities sponsoring the legislation is to draw and create private capital rather than compete with it. So far as Mississippi is concerned, they contend, there is very little private capital in industry to compete with at this time, especially in the hill counties. The state is largely without capital, has been unable to attract it by the usually accepted methods, and seeks, through the new laws, to remedy the deficiency. The governor's demand for a change was supported by statistics on Mississippi's position. The value of industrial enterprises in the state, he said, is $35 per capita, while in cther Southern states the average is about $140. Average per capita from income in the state is $180 annually and that of other people in the state $212, while the average per capita national income is $636. The state has tens of thousands of farm workers who, with the reduction, intensification and mechanization of cotton farming, may have to find other employment.

Location and erection of favorably situated factory buildings is intended, while the equipment and operation of the plants is expected to be left, where possible, to private capital, which it is hoped eventually will acquire all the property. The laws, if enacted, and held valid, will lapse in 1940, since the governor believes the value of the experiment will have been determined by that time. A heavy responsibility rests on the special state commission, as overseer, which must determine the feasibility of proposals made by the counties and towns, and approve their financing.

From a national point of view, any success that comes to the Mississippi plan probably will be marked as a step in the decentralization of industry. The experiment has been made possible chiefly by the network of power lines now spreading over the country, and decentralization of industry is one of the objects of the national electrification program.

ant. Thus far he has not undertaken the process of elimination. He is trying to be fair and open-minded and will endeavor to select a new Federal judge who will measure up to the qualifications essential for such a responsible place on the bench.

Who it will be nobody knows just now-not even Senator Harrison.

However, the Senior Senator must have grinned broadly at that sentence in the Bilbo letter saying:

"Political partisanship should not be the controlling factor in selecting a Federal judge." Since when did One-Termer cease to be a partisan? Is it a true state of mind or merely some political camouflage he is trying to perpetuate? We are inclined to the latter interpretation. If it isn't camouflage, a desire to make it appear that he may play some part in naming a Federal judge, then a miracle was wrought by that awful licking Bilbo took at the polls on the 25th of August.

This isn't an age of miracles. Furthermore, Bilbo is still Bilbo. "The leopard cannot change his spots."

In "San Francisco" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has again hit the bull's-GOLDEN WEDDING eye with a sensational picture that CELEBRATED BY MR. should prove sure-fire box-office success for several reasons.

It brings together for the first time three of the most popular stars of the screen-Clark Gable, Jeanette At Their Home at Leetown MacDonald and Spencer Tracy.

It produces on the screen some of the most hair-raising, realistic scenes of a great catastrophe ever before filmed. It was directed by W. S. 'Van

And it brings again to the screen with a big community party at their that lovely voice of Miss MacDonald's who covers a wider range of miles east of Picayune, Sunday, musical numbers than she has ever when about three hundred guests, before—not only the Mr. Lee's life was afforded by a remost difficult operatic arias, but ragtime tunes and even the most beautiful of religious hymns.

"San Francisco" is the story of Blackie Norton, lord of the old Barbary Coast before the San Francisco disaster in 1906. Into his resort wanders a small-town girl with great ambitions to become a singer. Gable, as Blackie, engages the girl to entertain his rowdy customers and from the dance hall she rises to heights as an opera star to thrill the hearts of San Francisco's music lovers. Later she returns to Blackie, who does not realize the depth of his love for the girl until he finds it in the destruction and suffering of the San Francisco disaster.

This new picture brings back the Clark Gable of old, rugged, twofisted and believing in nothing but his own power and his fascination over women.

Too, it brings to the screen a new Jeanette MacDonald with a voice that seems more beautiful, if that is possible, and revealing her as a very delightful comedienne, particularly when she gives her version of hipswaying torch singing in Blackie's Paradise Cafe.

The supporting cast is an admirable one-Jack Holt carrying off the "heavy" honors and providing most of the worry for Blackie Norton in his conquest for Mary; Ted Healy, Ross, in the biggest opportunity of her young screen career; reliable orated with sprays of rose of Mon- mises. THE Extraordinary Session of the Legislature convened in Jackson at 2 o'clock p. m., Monday, Sept. 14.

Following roll call three new members were escorted to the Speakers' stand and sworn in. They were: Mrs. Pearl Stansel of Sunflower, W. E. Garland, of Copiah, and Earl Richardson, of Neshoba.

"Shine" Morgan presided during the selection of a speaker, a vancancy existing by the death of Speaker Horace Stansel. Fielding Wright was put in nomination by Mrs. Pearl Stansel, widow of the late speaker, Representative Sam Lumpkin of Lee seconded the nomination, and election was by acclamation.

* * * The Legislature got off to an immediate start, minor appropriation bills being passed at once-one calling for the expenses of the extraordinary session, one to support and equip the medical school at the university, and to repay a loan for work done at the mansion. Another appropriation was made to cover cost of purchase of automobile tags, and to repay funds borrowed used by National Guards in emergency cases. These were passed by the House, and most of them have already been acted upon favorably by Monday night, Sept. 14, a joint legislative session was held and Governor White outlined his plan to balance Industry with agriculture.

Tuesday, Sept. 15 the House held a memorial service in respect of late Speaker Horace Stansel.

The discussion of the Industrial measure began early in both houses. The Senate disposed of it in short order. The House debated it several days, the bill finally passed the House late Thursday afternoon. The Senate concurred in the House amendments and the bill was okehed and sent to the Governor.

Several weeks ago, Secretary of State Walker Wood, charged by statute with the care and custody of the capitols, started a force of employers at work on the old stock rooms, cleaning them and reclassifying and indexing the contents, for the convenience of the future. Some of the storage rooms had been filled with old records and books removed from the old capitol at the date of occupancy of the new capitol in 1903, and many of these records had probably not been disturbed in many years.

In this work of renovation and indexing, many old record books, both written and printed were brought to attention, some of which revealed some interesting history. Among these records is a copy of the proceedings of the constitutional convention of 1868, and this and several more old records have been deposited with the department of archives and history.

Among other old books and records found, is the executive journal of the Secretary of State in 1874, containing the Acts of the governor at that time, who was Adelbert Ames, known and remembered in Mississippi as the "carpet-bag governor of reconstruction days, and another book is the Senate Journal of the regular 1874 session of the legislature. Both of these books contain the inaugural address of Governor Ames, written out in the executive journal, and printed in the senate journal.

Ames had been governor before his elective term, which began in January, 1874. He was a Union army officer, and at the close of the war between the States, held the rank of major-general, and was assigned to duty in Mississippi. On June 15, 1868, he was appointed, military governor of the state, under the reconstruction laws in force at that time. His administration, it is said, was exceeding arbitrary. Later he was elected to the U.S. Senate and took his seat in 1870. In 1873, when reconstruction was in its darkest period, Ames was elected governor, and at the same time. A. K. Davis, a negro, was elected lieutenant governor, and T. W. Cardoza and James J. Hill, both negroes, were elected superintendent of education and secretary of state, respectively.

When Ames took office as governor, there were nine negro senators and 55 negro representatives. There were a number of other negroes elected to state and county office during the reconstruction period, facts we are giving, merely to give you an idea of what conditions existed during the time of Ames' public life in Mississippi.

Ames' elective term as governor, however, bore evidence of being bitrary manner has become somehe made a number of timely suggestions, and his address showed that the state had a number of problems, almost identical with some of those that have confronted us

INTERESTING WEDDING CELEBRATED AT HOME OF

MR. AND MRS. F. L. HERLIHY. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Herlihy, in Main near Nicaise avenue, was the scene of an interesting wedding celebration, the occasion the marriage of Mrs. Herlihy's sister, Miss Jehane Anais Underwood, to Mr. William J. McQueen, both residents of New Orleans. The ceremony was performed at Waveland, with the Rev. Father M. J. Costello, pastor of the church of St. Claire, Waveland, officiating, Father Costello a personal warm friend of the contracting parties. It was a quiet event with near relatives of the two families and a few others attending.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobin Herndon Underwood and the groom a son of Mrs. Louis G. McQueen and the late Louis G. Mc-Queen, all of New Orleans.

The bride wore a chic gown of blue satin and carried an armful of white roses and other white flowers. AMPLE FUNDS

The belief is general that interest rates will continue low and that easy money will be available for expansion. The Federal Government's borrowing has passed its peak and this will leave ample bank funds for private financing.

ENCOURAGED!

Last week it was made clear at the White Huose that some of the speeches originally planned by the President during the campaign will be abandoned. President Roosevelt is reported encouraged over the prospects for his re-election.
